Office

When Ohio State University graduate added their Hall to the portfolio for the John Glenn School of Public Affairs, the architect had a clear idea: an award-winning office. Could they create an office that was both functional and beautiful? They decided they could. Glenn's office, which is located in the first floor of the building, is a perfect example of what can be achieved when the architect and the client work together. Glenn has never received more than one award for his office. He has received the 2009 National Space Office Design Award for his office. He has received the 2009 National Space Office Design Award for his office.

Surprised? Not at all. For visitors to Senator Glenn's work office, the office is a perfect example of what can be achieved when the architect and the client work together.

In 1962, NASA's ability to successfully send the earth's man's first step was a great thing. Glenn needed an old plan, and one of those plans had him landing in a jungle in Papua New Guinea, wearing a headband. The tribe there was a warlike, fierce, and primitive. Sharon Rockoff, US Sen. John D. Rockefeller's wife, gave the gift to Senator Glenn when she and her husband visited West Virginia. The couple brought to Glenn's office a gift of a book and a map of the state.

Marin Shoen signed a copy of "The War Wing" for Glenn back when the chair was still director of the agency. "I was very nervous that she was off the air," he says.
